

Ancient Manuscripts: Full Collection?

Third Edition

By Dr. Michael J. Bisconti

The question of where to find all of the ancient manuscripts is, to put it mildly, a crucial one. After all, if you have no manuscripts to test for divine authorship, such testing is impossible.

Well, first, God has made sure that we have all of the ancient manuscripts that we need. Not only that, he has made sure that you can get a copy of all of the ancient manuscripts, in a manner of speaking.

First, let's talk about the New Testament manuscripts. The full collection of all ancient manuscripts, which does not physically exist in one physical location, we refer to as "TSM-e (Textual Super Matrix: Empirical Form)." The TSM-e manuscripts are scattered in numerous museums and universities throughout the world.

Now, of course, no one person has the time or money to travel to all of these locations to get copies of all of these manuscripts. However, to begin with, a myriad of scholars over the centuries have saved us from having to do so. That brings us to Nestle-Aland. Nestle-Aland is a compressed compilation of 99.99% of the ancient Greek manuscripts in existence about which we have knowledge. There are numerous other scholarly sources. But, for now, we will concentrate on Nestle-Aland.

The "TSM-e Project" (our group) compiled what we call the "NAB Collection (Nestle-Aland-Bisconti Collection)." The NAB Collection has three major components: (1) the Nestle-Aland text (in its various incarnations), (2) facsimiles of 60% of the ancient Greek texts in existence, and (2) seven million (7,000,000) secondary source, corroborative copies of all of the ancient Greek manuscripts in existence (10,000 are available on the internet). In addition, we are forever expanding our collection in each of these three areas.

A question that needs to be answered is "When is an MDC (Manuscript Data Collection) large enough to provide an authoritative basis for a conclusion about the divine authorship of the Greek New Testament?" Everyone has their own answer to this question. This brings us to the CSPs (Common Sense Principles). The CSPs are ideas that every sane member of the human race accepts as true. This includes a fundamental principle, the "Circular Reasoning Principle":

A conclusion about something to be proved cannot be based on the thing to be proved.

However, this creates a problem for all of us. If we ultimately build on the Circular Reasoning Principle, we are not ultimately building on the Word of God. However...the real problem is...the fallacy that anyone ultimately builds on the Word of God. You see, your belief in the Word of God itself proceeded from something outside of the Word of God. It was either instilled by one or more human beings, usually parents, or it was the product of rational thought.

Therefore, the objection to ultimately building on something outside of the Word of God is not a valid one since no other course of action is possible. But how, then, do we know what to build on? Well, this leads to the Aurum Records, which are separate and distinct from the Aurum Verses. The Aurum Records are records of ideas that a human being cannot resist as they live their life.

I could share with you my Aurum Records (I have 10,000 journals) but that would not be good for you. Why? You need the evidence of the experience of the involuntary and agreeable acceptance of certain ideas. This will establish for you that there is an agency that beneficially rules your life to some extent. This is good because it will give you confidence and courage. You can begin creating your own Aurum Records. Keep track of what ideas you involuntarily and agreeably accept. If so, keep them in a safe place, never tell anyone about them, and only write abstract ideas, nothing concrete; for example, “people are smart” instead of “my brothers are smart.” Note that this involuntary and agreeable acceptance does not preclude reasoning. In fact, it will usually be preceded by reasoning. Not always, though, because some ideas are intuitive; that is you just know they are true. The sky is blue. The grass is green. You wish you had a chocolate shake.

Okay, so when is an MDC (Manuscript Data Collection) large enough to provide an authoritative basis for a conclusion about the divine authorship of the Greek New Testament? My Aurum Records show that I consistently, involuntarily and agreeably find one million to be the magic number. Of course, we have far surpassed that number and the number continues to grow.

Now, a significant fact about Nestle-Aland is that use of Nestle-Aland alone will provide you with the same results as use of the NAB Collection. This is important because it means that you can use our Abacus software to confirm our conclusions, on your computer or tablet. In addition, you can use the “top 100” digigraph principles to manually confirm, to a much lesser but still significant degree, our conclusions.

Now, what about the Old Testament manuscripts? Overall, our main manuscripts for the Old Testament are, in alphabetical order :

Abisha Scroll	Aleppo Codex
Ben Asher Manuscripts	Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia
British Museum Codex	Cairo Codex
Cairo Geniza Fragments	Codex Babylonicus Petropolitanus
Codex Cairensis	Codex Leningradensis
Codex Orientales 4445	Codex Reuchlinanus
Damascus Pentateuch	Dead Sea Scrolls
Erfurt Codices	First Rabbinic Bible
Kitag Gi-Hulaf	Leningrad Codex
Michigan Codex	Nash Papyrus
Reuchlin Codex	Samaritan Pentetuch

In addition, in subordinate usage of course, we use the following translations:

Septuagint
 Origen Septuagint
 Peshitta
 Targum
 Vulgate

Next, in usage subordinate to all of the above, we use:

Rabbinic Literature

Finally, we use a library of three million (3,000,000) other sources.

Now, it is highly unlikely that you will ever be able to collect all of these sources yourself; so, we want you to know that you will get the same results we get by using the First Rabbinic Bible and our Abacus software. We have designed a special version of Abacus, which includes all of our main Hebrew manuscripts (repeated from above):

Abisha Scroll	Aleppo Codex
Ben Asher Manuscripts	Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia
British Museum Codex	Cairo Codex
Cairo Geniza Fragments	Codex Babylonicus Petropolitanus
Codex Cairensis	Codex Leningradensis
Codex Orientales 4445	Codex Reuchlinanus
Damascus Pentateuch	Dead Sea Scrolls
Erfurt Codices	First Rabbinic Bible
Kitag Gi-Hulaf	Leningrad Codex
Michigan Codex	Nash Papyrus
Reuchlin Codex	Samaritan Pentetuch

After the second edition of this article was published, we launched a website devoted to the publication of all of the ancient manuscripts of the Bible – Lionwrit.
